A comprehensive perspective plan for three years is prepared for integrating therein the plan of development in a manner ensuring the required facilities for the academic and administrative progress of the College. Accordingly, the perspective plan is prepared and placed before the College Development Committee [Sec. 97 (5) (a) of Maharashtra Public Universities Act, 2016] regarding academic, administrative and infrastructural growth, and enable College to foster excellence in Curricular, Co-curricular and Extra-curricular activities.

A College is a vital node in the society, and the youth who enter our portals as students today will be the builders of the nation tomorrow. A College is a both a busy hub of activities, a training camp for the future and, at the same time, a microcosm of the wider life outside the precincts of the campus. Keeping all these definitions of a college in mind, the perspective plan help a tangible vision of the college for the next three years, and help chart its positive growth in the most suitable direction for its learners, its alma mater, its academia and the city of Mumbai.

The Indian constitution, which is the base on which the superstructure of the Indian nation has been built, guarantees all its citizens certain fundamental rights, including that right to freedom of speech and expression, which is the very soul of democracy, provided it is used with care and empathy. The Indian constitution also pledges that India will be a sovereign, secular, socialist, democratic republic. These are the ideals that the founding fathers of the nation enjoined us to believe in and to follow at all times in our lives.

Our constitution also gives us a list of Fundamental Duties, which are like a list that should guide our actions as responsible citizens of society. One of these fundamental duties of all Indian citizens is to preserve our "composite culture", "spirit of critical inquiry and social reform", and "excellence" in all walks of life under Article 15 A. This means that our nation-builders have always valued the cultural diversity of our vast and multi-lingual country, that they believed that humanity and rationalism were inextricably intertwined and that we should always strive to improve ourselves and our society.

An impressive feature of the plan is the spirit of collective responsibility evinced by the college. The perspective plan is prepared on the basis of long-term and short-term goals for the further development and improvement of the college and its programmes, courses and facilities from the point of view of progress of existing facilities proper planning.

Major aspects of traditional wisdom of creating higher education institutes has been thoughtfully integrated into the planning, so as to keep it beneficial for the success of the overall planning without being in conflict with other planning principles. From master planning to
